ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[1033]   Techniques have been developed whereby likely pointer values are identified at runtime and contents of corresponding storage location can be prefetched into a cache hierarchy to reduce effective memory access latencies. In some realizations, one or more writable stores are defined in a processor architecture to delimit a portion or portions of a memory address space.

- 18 -